WORK IN CONGRESS.

Provisions of the Arrested Pleuro-Pneumonia Bill Pending in the Senate.

Allows A. Sundry Civil a Chance to Explain His Attack on Secretary Chandler.

The Position Taken by the Anti-Bounty Senators—The Appropriations.

THE PLEURO-PNEUMONIA BILL.

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—The debate on the Pleuro-Pneumonia bill calling out quite animated. The measure had been amended in various important particulars, and as it stands at present authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture, if he deems it necessary, to establish a Bureau of Animal Industry in connection with the Agricultural Department. This bureau is to be in charge of a competent engineer at a salary of $5,000. He is to have not to exceed twenty assistants. His duty is to investigate and report on the condition of the cattle system of the country, the extent of contagious, infectious, and communicable diseases, the means employed to prevent them, and to collect such information as may be of value to the agricultural and commercial interests. The Commissioner is also authorized to appoint two competent employees to make the investigations. The bill appropriates $200,000 for the necessary expenses of the inquiry, the cost of which is to be paid by the States having been ordered to their ports, and the Secretary is to report to each session of Congress on the progress of the work, and to recommend such legislation as may be necessary to prevent the spread of dangerous, contagious, infectious, and communicable diseases from one State or Territory to another.

OPPOSITION OF THE ADMINISTRATION.

The Pleuro-Pneumonia bill passed both parties by securing the adoption of a provision in the effect that the measure should not be considered as a criticism of the action of the Department of Agriculture in the matter of the quarantine. This provision was accepted by Mr. Hatch, who, however, said he was compelled to oppose the bill because it was in direct opposition to the views of the Secretary of Agriculture, as set forth in his annual report. Mr. Hatch subsequently announced that he was not personally in favor of the bill, but that having been ordered to report it by the Committee on Agriculture, of which he was a member, he had done so. He was opposed to the bill because it was in direct opposition to the views of the Secretary of Agriculture, as set forth in his annual report. Mr. Hatch subsequently announced that he was not personally in favor of the bill, but that having been ordered to report it by the Committee on Agriculture, of which he was a member, he had done so. He was opposed to the bill because it was in direct opposition to the views of the Secretary of Agriculture, as set forth in his annual report.

Mr. Hatch made a brief but exceptional defense of the bill, in which he declared that the body of the bill in the Department was entirely in harmony with the views of the Secretary of Agriculture, as set forth in his annual report. He said that the bill was in direct opposition to the views of the Secretary of Agriculture, as set forth in his annual report. CONFLAGRATIONS.

Destruction of the Mark Tapscott Business Block in Glens Falls, N. Y.

Two Opera-Houses, One Public Hall, and a Church Among the Buildings Burned.

A Large Amount of Lumber Burned at Cedar Rapids, Mich.—Other Destructive Fires.

The Mount Tapscott Block at Glens Falls, N. Y., Burned—Losses, $150,000.

NEW YORK, April 29.—[Special.]—The dispatch from Glens Falls, N. Y., says:

For over five years conflagrations in this city, but Glens Falls have no conflagrations of any consequence, and a man who remembers Church and Schuylerville's fires that burning here knows. Yesterday the fire department responded to two alarms, one at 1 p. m. and the other at 4 p. m. The alarms were accidental, and the fire department promptly responded, but through the burning of a hose and lack of force of the water, under the circumstances, the second fire would be more destructive than the first. Yesterday's fire, the second in the north end of the city, was discovered about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and the fire department promptly responded. Owing to the scarcity of water, however, the flames spread rapidly, and before the fire was under control the Mark Tapscott block, the Opera-House, and Schuylerville's Opera-House, the Methodist Church, and Schuylerville's Union Hall building were burned. The fire was first discovered in the north end of the main building of the Mark Tapscott block, and was discovered by Tim Sullivan, a fireman, at about 4 o'clock. The fire department responded promptly, and through the burning of a hose and lack of force of the water, under the circumstances, the second fire would be more destructive than the first. Yesterday's fire, the second

Mr. and Mrs. Georg Henschel's Concert.

The future of truly artistic singing have had a new lease in the concerts given at Kimball Hall last by Mr. and Mrs. Henschel. It is not often that such artistic singing is heard in any city, and it rarely reaches the lofty appreciation that was to given to it. Mr. Henschel has an unusual reputation for his German and singing, and both Europe and America have given him acknowledgment for the wonderful skill he brings to bear in his art. He sings delightfully in all schools, and in four modern languages. His method is that which is born of nature, and developed by the hard hand of true art. His tone is strong, true and telling, although the quality is designed for purest characteristics. In the rapid arias of Handel, the accented breath, which enables him to sing such passages in an extremely pleasing, and only indicates the particulars of his method, but also shows his true devotion to his art. The delightful manner in which he declares every note, no that it passes into silence with a most perfect and musical breath, is an example of a combination worth the observation of every music student. It is this full command of voice that enables him to give to his vocal interpretations that beauty of expression that they always brought. Mrs. Henschel is a soprano fully worthy neither to be overlooked in all that she does. Her voice is pure, musically, and so delightfully sweet that a chorus by reason of its quality. Here graceful and elegant interpretation of the great songs of the Scotch, the Germans, or the English to here and heard the many a year. The pretty ballad she gave to her husband's song, "When all the World is Young," was so truly genuine that it brought all the listeners and attendants in close with the feeling and sentiment to the gem. Such singing makes an audience feel the power of music, for the atmosphere of real art is there.

In their duet singing last evening they were generously effective, and showed the result due to their wonderful agreement of thought that was only to possible when both persons are artist. The "Ave Maria" selection was very lovely song Mr. Henschel's personal accompaniments adds greatly to the charm of the singing. Only the most superior musicians can follow Mr. Henschel's piano as he does, and the audience was fortunate in the possession of the musician.

Miss Bjorksten played a transcription of the gems from Wagner's operas. The artistic audience manifested their delight in eloquent and most hearty applause, making the artist add to encore their appreciation many times.

Rose Eytinge's Company Stranded.

The bill to-day-evening shows that night was the sudden departure for Detroit of Rose Eytinge and Lyle Swain, her husband and manager. As is generally known, the season that for her seems a most unfortunate one for Miss Eytinge's company, and last week it was decided to cancel the date at Lincoln, as there was no prospect of reaching the town. The engagement in Chicago was also discouraging, and was the "last straw" to breaking the financial back of the company. Miss Eytinge and her husband left here at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, although they had an engagement to meet certain members of the company at 8:30. The actors who supported her here in "A Woman's Sin" say that they have been left in the lurch, and some are hard to their companies. The son of Mrs. Swain of the late Sam Swain Stevens, Philadelphia, was connected with the company, and was alleged to misapply funds for manager. The season of Rose Eytinge's engagements would not be definitely announced, but she will doubtless be heard from before long, when more light will be thrown upon the tragedy of this unchronicle misfortune.

W. J. Scanlan at Hooley's.

"Gilhooley," the new play in which W. J. Scanlan is appearing at Hooley's, is merely a re-hash of "The Commodore," special prominence being given to the minor part of Cadet Craig, who, to which the Scanlan made his hit in a few days ago. There is no occasion to comment upon the play of Harlan Dougherty, with its many platitudes, its poorly constructed dialogue sentences, its dubious suggestive lines of light character, and its monotonous succession of domestic comedy and family quarrels. Manager Hooley has served up the bill of miscellaneous stories and dramas of Irish life—"Shamus O'Brien," "Kathleen Mavourneen," "Golden Hours," etc.—in a fashion of natural novelty as to making the presumption implied in commercial star upon a much-impressed people. As to last night's performance, it was but such that Mr. Scanlan's many friends will be glad to learn that his voice is in good condition, and that he sings with much sweetness and power. Miss Jennie Weathersby, as Kitty Clover, was unable to do justice to the part, and Miss Lizzie Hudson, as Mrs. Clover, was unable to do justice to the part. Miss Lizzie Hudson, as Mrs. Clover, was unable to do justice to the part. Miss Lizzie Hudson, as Mrs. Clover, was unable to do justice to the part.
